petitioner in approaching the Court, in our view, also is unreasonable, unjust and not properly explained and therefore, the conclusion arrived by the learned Single Judge appears to be just and proper. No case is made out for showing indulgence. Hence, the Letters Patent Appeal is dismissed.

The learned counsel for the Appellant requests that the order may not be given effect to for a period of four weeks since the Letters Patent Appeal is dismissed on the count of delay and laches. The request is rejected.
